

I feel that the use of cell phones during flight would cause more passenger aggravation. Noise levels are already irritating in flight. You add someone talking too loud on their phone and I think we could have many passenger arguments. As a flight attendant of 31 years, I have observed things like the noise of children's toys to stir up a heated discussion amongst passengers. Please don't add this to the mix. People don't always know how to be courteous in public. Thanks for letting me express my feelings.
